Annual Army Lists 1755-1784

Introduction

Each year the British War Office would publish a listing of all officers in the Army. The lists were popular with the serving officers because they showed their relative rank in the army. These rankings also had a practical purpose and allowed officers to compare seniority for command when sent out on multi-regiment detachments. The lists show two columns with dates of rank. The regiment column shows the rank of the officer in the regiment. This rank served for all regimental duties and for seniority when opportunities for promotion in the regiment became available. Rank in the army showed dates of rank from previous regiments and those instances when the War Office would promote an officer to a higher rank than his regimental rank. This rank did not usually include temporary promotions granted overseas (e.g. America or India) which were valid only while serving in that location.

An example of regimental rank in the 42nd Regt. is Brevet-Lt. Col. Duncan M^cPherson's experience. Before coming out of Half-pay to join the 42nd Regt. in 1775, M^cPherson had served as a Captain in India in the 89th Regt. with a date of rank of Oct. 19, 1759 and had gone out on Half-pay after the war when his regiment was disbanded. Although his rank in the army as a Brevet-Major was July 1772, his regimental rank in the 42nd Regt. as a Captain was dated Aug. 15, 1775. Accordingly, in early 1776 Maj. M^cPherson ranked ninth of nine Captains in the regiment behind Capt. John Smith who had been a Captain only since Jan. 15, 1775.

Most annual lists would include Half-pay officers who had been relieved from active service when their regiments were reduced or disbanded. It should be noted, however, that the Half-pay lists often contain officers who had not served with the 42nd Regt. Frequently officers on active service would exchange with an officer on Half-pay resulting in non-42nd Regt. officers on the list. For example Maj. William Hunter, 36th Regt., exchanged with Maj. Allan Campbell on the 42nd Regt. Half-pay list on Mar. 27, 1770 and remained on the 42nd Regt. Half-pay list for many years.

The officers in the following lists marked with an * served in the 42nd or Royal Highland Regt. During the period of the regiment's service in the War for American Independence (1776 – 1783), all officers on the lists met this criteria and accordingly no differentiation is necessary and their names are not marked. In addition, those officers who served only in the 2nd Battalion, 42nd Regt. raised in 1779-1780 for service in India under Lt. Col. Norman MacLeod of MacLeod are not marked. Printing errors in the original documents are retained. The term "do." is an abbreviation for ditto.

The Annual Army Lists maintained at the United Kingdom National Archives (TNA) in War Office Volume 65 also contain contemporaneous War Office annotations of promotions, exchanges, retirements and deaths of the listed officers. In order to clarify and simplify the annual lists those annotations are not included in the following listings. The same transaction information is, however, presented in Appendix K of this volume in the Regimental Commission and Succession Books.

Although an Annual List was published for 1754 (WO 65/1), the 42nd Regt. is not shown because the list was for the British Establishment only and the 42nd Regt. was on the Irish Establishment that year.
